The day of the partisan primary is nearing the dawn. This was exemplified at the primaries over the state on Tuesday when nominations for various municipal and township offices were made by minorities of the various parties having nomination tickets on the ballot.

The villages and townships will go back to the old style of voting this fall. All candidates will get their names on the ballot by petition and as many can run as can secure the necessary number of signatures. In this way these townships and corporations have saved about $40 to the precinct as election expense.

In the city of Cleveland the various political parties offered their candidates. There was not a contest in the list except for one office where two Republicans were candidates for nomination. The other candidates on Democratic and Socialist tickets had no opposition. Thus it can be seen that the city of Cleveland is not compelled to meet an election expense of more than $12,000 to settle as to who should be the Republican nominee for some important office.

The adoption of charters in various cities under the recent home rule amendment will be the entering wedge to abolish primaries and political parties controlling municipal affairs. Already Cleveland, Dayton, Springfield, Middletown and other cities not under the control of political bosses have adopted the non-partisan movement. Last week the Supreme Court sustained the Cleveland idea of preferential voting.

A new era has dawned upon municipalities and new responsibilities have been forced upon the voters through the "let the people" rule idea. In villages the operation of the present code is more expensive than necessary. It was so with cities. Springfield will elect five city commissioners at a salary of $5000 annually to conduct their affairs. This is but one-half the present salary of the mayor. This, with a saving by abolishing other offices and concentrating responsibility upon a few, will mean several thousand dollars earned to the taxpayers yearly.

The legislature this next winter, at special session will not doubt abolish the primary if present indications can be judged. The lack of interest, the creation of new ideas of government and the economy in saving finances will force public sentiment to a point where the legislature cannot ignore the demand.

DON'T LET CROPS "FIGHT."

Professor Taylor of the agricultural economics department of the University of Wisconsin agricultural experiment station says no single farm crop grown in Wisconsin keeps the farm labor busy all the time, but by a proper combination of crops employment of labor can be extended materially throughout the year. There are, however, limits to diversification. For instance, corn and tobacco require labor at the same time for planting and cultivation and are therefore competing crops, but tobacco furnishes winter employment to labor when there is a scarcity of employment, and therefore to this extent these crops are non-competing or complementary. The use of non-competing crops may well extend the operations of the farm.

ROTATION AND STOCK.

Two Work Together to Bring Greater Profit to the Farmer.

In a bulletin of the North Dakota station R. C. Donahue says of live stock in the general plan of crop rotation: "In regions of light rainfall the maintenance of the organic matter of soils is the most practical method of increasing their water holding capacity. The plant remains, straw, stubble, etc., in these sections decay very slowly, and much care is necessary in returning organic matter to these soils. If live stock is fed on the farm and the straw and other refuse are worked into the manure it will decay faster when returned to the land. While a rotation can be used with profit if live stock is not kept, it is much easier to return the organic matter contained in the crop residues when they are fed on the farm."

"Live stock is not absolutely necessary when beginning a rotation, but for the average conditions when they are kept the profits will be greater. A rotation may be followed without the return of the organic matter for a time, but eventually it must be returned, if not returned in manure more expensive methods must be used."

PUT THE HOG IN THIS.

Homemade Contrivance Good Also For Moving Other Heavy Objects.
Here is the handiest hog chute we ever have seen, and it can be arranged out of an ordinary chute by taking a couple of cultivator or any other small wheels and putting them in the rear midway of the floor from the rear end, says the Iowa Homestead.
While any piece of strong timber will make a suitable axle for bearing up the chute, an axle from some old discarded spring wagon or buggy will last practically a lifetime and prove much more satisfactory than a wood axle. When it is desired to move the chute all that is necessary is to tilt the rear end and push the frame to the desired position. Instead of the old cumbersome method of tugging and dragging it around to where it was wanted.
If the wheels are kept well greased or oiled and if the chute is not too heavy one can use it for moving heavy articles around that could not be carried by hand.

PORTABLE HOG CHUTE.
[From the Iowa Homestead.]

PORTABLE HOG CHUTE.

The Value of Limestone.
"As valuable as lime is on the farm when the correction of acid soils is necessary it is not necessary to pay exorbitant prices for it," said Porter Elliot of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State university. "At recent extension schools during the discussion of soil liming it developed that farmers were paying as high as $3 a ton for carbonate of lime when ground limestone, which would do the work just as well, could be secured for less than a third of that cost. Get good ground limestone, and it will correct acidity just as readily as the best carbonate of lime you can find on the market. The farm profits will not increase until such useless waste is eliminated from the farm practices."

"GARDEN TRUCK."

The ground dries out more quickly under a high headed tree and more fruit is blown off by the wind. Manure the rhubarb and asparagus fields. Both crops are the best where there is an abundance of vegetable matter in the soil.
Asparagus roots, properly planted, fertilized and given good culture, will continue to produce large spears for fifteen to twenty years in succession.
If the currant or gooseberry bushes become infested with worms the pest can be abated by dusting the bushes with powdered white hellebore or spraying them with a solution made by adding the hellebore at the rate of a tablespoonful to a quart of water.
Lime dust around garden plants will keep away snails. They may also be trapped by putting cabbage leaves, lettuce or bits of raw potato about the infested places, leaving over night and then removing and destroying the snails harbored by the trap material.

HOW UNCLE SAM HELPS.

A bulletin of the bureau of plant industry, "a study of farm equipment in Ohio," gives a most valuable review of important data of this character gathered and collated with much painstaking care by Mr. L. W. Ellis. On twenty-one farms investigated the following was found to be the average distribution of capital invested: In land, drainage and water supply, 61 per cent; in buildings, 21 per cent; in implements and machinery, 6 per cent; and in live stock, 12 per cent. The bulletin gives much detailed information, of which the figures just quoted represent a gross summary.

Our in the day of scientific management. No longer need the farmer slowly find his way to the best working conditions by a series of successive approximations. The government helps him to profit by the experience of others who have preceded him and have paid the heavy dues of that excellent but dear schooling.

DON'T BURN ROUGHAGE.

Expensive and Wasteful Practice With Cornstalks, Straw, Chaff, Etc.

A contributor to Farm and Fireside writes: "A tendency exists among many farmers to burn up all cornstalks, loose straw, clover chaff and superfluous roughage about the place. But it is too expensive.
"Every time an acre of stalks is burned twenty-one pounds of nitrogen go into the air, and it will cost you $3.50 to buy it back again. Wheat or oat straw from an acre contains about twelve to fourteen pounds of nitrogen and clover chaff three times this amount."

"One can easily figure from these deductions what a reckless loss to the farmer is a fire in the chaff pile or stalk field. The cutaway and disk harrows will chop these bulky materials up ready for the plow where they can be turned under. If you want to fatten the old farm, stuff it with organic matter."

FOR A SILO SCAFFOLD.

Directions For Making Necessary Part of Concrete or Tile Structure.
Should any one be thinking of building a concrete or tile silo the accompanying cut might help in building the scaffold. After the foundation wall is laid get five poles at least eight feet higher than you expect the silo to be. Set inside of the wall deep enough to hold poles in place. Lay

SCAFFOLD INSIDE SILO.

Heavy lines, 2 by 4 or 2 by 6, boards to work on. Five radial circles indicate position of support poles.

[From National Stockman and Farmer.]

Leave plenty of room for poles to work easily; then floor as shown by dotted lines in cut. Attach a pulley to each pole and raise when ready. Then splice a piece under scaffold on poles. One scaffold does it all. The scaffold should have just plenty enough to let it slide up easily. Sometimes if it is too loose a wedge to hold it firm while at work should be put in.
The idea of having the poles longer than the silo is high is to get pulleys high enough for last raise.—National Stockman and Farmer.

Chicks Need Cleanliness.

Drinking dishes and feeding troughs for chicks are likely to become dirty and unsanitary unless special precautions are taken, according to Professor J. G. Halpin of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. Drinking water should never be placed in common dishes or vessels where the chicks may get in with both feet, but "sanitary" fountain, either homemade or purchased, should be used. These should be cleaned and scalded at frequent intervals. Wet washes when fed in wooden troughs mold unless all refuse food is scraped off and the troughs are placed on end so that they may dry in the sun. Neglect of these two simple matters may cause considerable loss.

Coverings For Silage.

The use of heavy tarpaulin to cover the surface of silage during summer feeding is being practiced quite successfully by some of the readers of the Kansas Farmer. The tarpaulin is very carefully spread over the whole surface of the silage, and the silage is removed from half the surface only at each feeding, alternating from one side of the silo to the other. In this way a thicker layer can be removed from the surface fed from daily. The tarpaulin cover retards the tendency to spoil on the surface left untouched.

BLACK ROT OF CABBAGE.

Recognized by Blackened Veins of Leaves.—Treatment Recommended.

Black bacterial rot of cabbage, says a bulletin of the Connecticut agricultural experiment station, occurs on a number of related cruciferous plants, but we have reported it from this before only on cauliflower. While we did not see it on cabbage until last season, it seems quite probable that it has caused more or less harm to this host before, since it has been reported as quite injurious in several other eastern states in times past.

This disease is recognized by the blackened veins of the leaves where the bacteria develop chiefly, and in time extend down into the head. The leaf tissues finally turn yellow, and the leaves are easily pulled off. Soft rot, caused in part by other organisms, often loosens them at the base and develops an ill smelling internal decay. The bacteria gain entrance through drops of water at the water pores on the margins of the leaves.

BLACK BACTERIAL ROT OF CABBAGE.

As the germs of this disease can be carried on the seed, it is wise to see that the seed used does not come from a diseased crop. It doubt exists it is well to treat the seed with formalin, 1-240, or corrosive sublimate, 1-1000, for fifteen minutes. Likewise, if the disease shows up in a seed bed, this should be changed the next year. If bad in the field this land should not be used for cruciferous crops for several seasons and, even if the disease is not present, yearly rotation is desirable where it can be carried on without special difficulty. Refuse from diseased cabbages should never find its way to the manure pile.

WHY BURN UP WEALTH?

According to some authorities, the value of plant food removed from the soil per bushel of wheat is about 30 cents for average yields. The plant food elements contained in straw are sometimes estimated at the rate of 100 lbs. of straw, either in the form of straw or mixed with farm manure where it has been utilized for bedding purposes. It is not plain why the farmer should spend so much time and energy striving to raise large yields of grain and straw and then waste about one-half of the net profit of the crop. There should be some means of utilizing that portion of the wheat crop which heretofore has been burned on a large percentage of our farms.—Kansas Farmer.

Good Plant Protector.

To be made from bottomless barrel, especially for early squash or the main crop in the far north.

Two covers are made from one barrel, which is saved in two, with a slant through the bilge of the barrel extending to upper and lower hoops. The slanting about the barrel a mark with a pencil for a guide to saw by. Cover each half with a piece of muslin, which is held in place by the top hoop if easily removed, otherwise by tying a string about the barrel.

Its usefulness may be prolonged by putting on a hay wire for a bottomless hoop.
Faster near the bottom with double pointed carpet tacks, or small wire nails.

Any sized tank may be used suited to the plant, from a paint keg to a puncheon.—American Cultivator.

What Makes a Good Cow?

Professor W. J. Kennedy of the Iowa station recommends the following in reference to the selection of breeding stock for the dairy:
In selecting dairy cattle the real test must be the scales and the Babcock tester. The cow is a machine to convert food into milk. Thus she must have a large middle and a strong constitution to insure the best results. She must also have a large udder, large milk veins, large crooked milk veins and good sized teats.

What Makes a Good Bacon.

Of course you like the big, juicy, red and white streaked strips of bacon. But you may not know that this kind of bacon is produced by feeding ground barley mixed with skim milk. Fed alone is an excellent hog feed. Barley also is good for sheep and as a feed for horses and cattle is nearly equal to corn.

New Idea for Stereoscope. The old-time stereoscope, the friend of our childhood days, is promised a return to popularity in a somewhat new guise. The old-time device has been hitherto the latest phase of the photographic art, and it may be but a short time before the modernized stereoscope will be seen in the parlors and sitting rooms of every home as it was once before. The moving picture machine has been made available for domestic purposes. It is no longer limited to the auditorium and the hall, but a new camera, small, compact, and easily operated and not expensive, places the facility for making these pictures within the reach of the amateur. With the knowledge acquired with a little practice one may make pictures which will catch the merry twinkle of the eye, the fleeting light of baby's dimple and the little individualities which are lost in the fussiness of the studio pose.

Needed Knowledge. Sometimes one wonders if the world has forever lost its sense of peace and beauty, and if we are to waste and waste until the end of time. Will simple pleasures seem tame and quiet ways unsuccessful? Or are we mad only for a little term, and will we return to spacious and serene things after this feverish cool? Shall we soon turn from the clatter of these days, the temporary display, the "artificial" values set on position and success, the scorn of what is simple-hearted and generous, the haste and noise that drown out all gentle voices? It is time to recover our knowledge of the wind on the hills, the silent passage of a summer's day, the swift wind-swept procession of early autumn clouds, the sea in calm and storm, with the breaking waves that wear away the beach—Collier's Weekly.

Surely Lovely. Miss Quizz—Have you ridden in Charley's new car?
Mrs. Malaprop—Yes; it was lovely. There was some occasion, but it didn't bother me a bit—Brooklyn Life.

Keep Fences in Condition. A New Jersey man, according to a decision of the state supreme court, must pay damages for the death of his neighbor's cow, which broke through the fence of a garden and ate enough green corn to cause its death. The farmer who lost the green corn was liable to damages, the court decided, because the fence should have been so constructed that the neighbor's cow could not have broken through.

ARTIST'S SKETCHES OF THE A SECOND LOSS BY FIRE

Eighteen hundred bushels of corn, a heavy stock, a large quantity of hay, and a large quantity of other farm products were lost in the fire which broke out on the farm of Mr. John R. Chambers on the Federal road, near Cedarville, Friday night, April 10, 1914.

The fire, which broke out on the farm, did not discover the fire until it had gained such headway that it was impossible to save any of the contents of the crib. Only about two weeks ago a large barn on the same farm was destroyed by fire and since that time the crib had been used for storing hay and a heavy stock of corn. The fire was caused by a lighted cigarette which was thrown into the crib and contents and the loss is estimated at about $1800 or $2000.

The fire which occurred between 10 and 11 o'clock, was of incendiary origin, and the blood hounds of the Cedarville Protective Association were taken to the scene in an effort to locate the fire bugs, but the dogs were unable to follow anything of value owing to the crowd that had gathered about the building.

A number of barns in the same neighborhood have been burned recently and it is believed that the most of the fire have been of incendiary origin.

THE LUGAN GAS COMPANY, WHICH EXPLOSION WAS RESULT.

The Logan Gas Company, which was organized in 1911, and which has a capital of $100,000, was the cause of the explosion which occurred on the farm of Mr. John R. Chambers on the Federal road, near Cedarville, Friday night, April 10, 1914.

The explosion was caused by a gas leak from a pipe in the crib, and the fire which broke out on the farm, did not discover the fire until it had gained such headway that it was impossible to save any of the contents of the crib. Only about two weeks ago a large barn on the same farm was destroyed by fire and since that time the crib had been used for storing hay and a heavy stock of corn. The fire was caused by a lighted cigarette which was thrown into the crib and contents and the loss is estimated at about $1800 or $2000.

NO REASON FOR ALARM.

Several days ago a suit was filed in the court at Columbus against the Ohio Fuel Supply company, which if sustained would shut off gas for a number of cities. As Cedarville is served by this company, people here are naturally interested.

The suit is over a gas well situated in what is known as the reservoir which extends under Richmond, Ashland, Licking and Knox counties. The Ohio Fuel has a well in Licking county and pumps are used to drive the gas to their lines. The Upham company, which brought the suit, does not use pumps and claims that the Ohio Fuel is taking more than its share of the gas, and more than the natural flow. The plaintiff asks that the Ohio Fuel be denied the right to pump the gas.

High Valuation.
A comprehensive valuation of Buckingham palace, London, and its contents just completed by a west end firm is given at $17,500,000. The value of one room is estimated at $2,500,000.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By M. O. MILLER, Director of Evening Bible School, The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 7

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS.

LESSON TEXT.—Ex. 20:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

The decalogue divides itself into two parts; the first has to do with man and his relations to God, the second deals with man and his relations with men. We consider today the first part. From Deut. 5:22, 23 we learn that the words of these eternal principles were spoken to the whole assembly from the midst of the burning mountain and that they stand apart from the Mosaic law. It was God himself who spoke (v. 1) to the redeemed people (v. 2). Afterwards he wrote them with his own finger on tablets of stone, Deut. 5:22. This law was done away with in Christ (Col. 2:14, 15, 17; 3 Cor. 3:11) but nevertheless each one of these commands, excepting the fourth is reiterated in the New Testament, emphasizing the eternal abidingness of their principles. The principle of a day of rest one day in seven has not, however, been set aside, as we shall see hereafter. The purpose of the law is to bring to men the knowledge of sin and thereby to lead them to Christ, Rom. 7:5, 7, 12; Gal. 3:10, 24. John the beloved, tells us "that his commandments are not grievous." Men who understand the spirit of the decalogue know that every commandment tends to make better citizens, better parents, better children, in fact to enable one to live satisfactorily with himself and his neighbors and his God.

Principles of Thought.
I. The First Commandment, vv. 1-3. Instinctively one thinks of two other principles of religious thought. "In the beginning God," Gen. 1:1, and the first two words of the discipline prayer, "Our Father," Matt. 6:9. The latter alone can furnish us a measurement sufficiently great to enable us fully to comprehend the fullness of this thought. God the creator, law giver, father. In the beginning, at this mountain and in his son, teaching us of his character.

Up to this time everything had been done for the Israelites. Hereafter they must keep the law in order to obtain life, Rom. 10:5; Gal. 3:12. In this Gospel dispensation we obtain life as an enabling agent whereby to perform it to keep the law, Eph. 2:1, 5-6. The Christian's higher law is Christ himself, inasmuch as the righteousness of the law is fulfilled in the Christian who walks after the spirit, Rom. 8:4. The foundation of all of this is to "have no other gods before (or beside) me," Matt. 4:10.

II. The Second Commandment, vv. 4-6. This is negative in that we shall not attempt any visible representation or likeness of God, and positive in that we shall not bow down in worship nor serve any such likeness. The wisdom of this is only too evident when we carefully study the dogmas of all forms of heathen religions. The creation of man's hands is worshiped in lieu of the creature supposed to be represented. God did sanction images, Ex. 27:17, 20; 1 Kings 7:25. The service of art in the matter of religion is freely acknowledged but nevertheless it is attended by grave danger as is evidenced by Roman Catholic observances in many parts of the world. True worship must be in spirit the God who is spirit, John 4:24; Phil. 3:3. He must be supreme in our hearts and our affections, the perpetuity of either blessing or curse for the observance or violation of this edict may at first seem to be rather harsh. Yet we must consider that posterity is the continuation of one's self. We do what our fathers did, Heb. 7:9, 10. God has however made a merciful provision whereby we may turn the misery of sin into a blessing, Ex. 18:12, 19, 20 and Rom. 8:28. Let us rather emphasize the converse of this law of heredity, viz., that the blessing is likewise perpetuated, "to a thousand generations," Deut. 7:9; Ps. 105:8; Rom. 11:28, 32.

III. The Third Commandment, v. 7. Here is demanded absolute sincerity by all in the use of the divine name and thus forbids all forms of blasphemy. This covers much more than ordinary vulgar profanity. The flippant and sacrilegious use of divine terms and phrases; the use, whether in prayer or praise of divine names and expressions which are not a part of our life experience is a form of blasphemy. Vain, empty, false usage of God's name is blasphemous. A proper reverence towards God is fundamental to any true love for God.

IV. The Fourth Commandment, vv. 8-11. Attention has been called to the fact that nowhere does it say the seventh day of the week, though that is what the Israelites observed. This is the Sabbath of Jehovah. While this was specially designated for the Jew, (Deut. 5:1, 12, 15), and not literally binding upon the Christian (Col. 2:16, 17), yet it has underlain a great wise and beneficent principle, man's need for rest one day in seven. Physically and nervously he needs rest and refreshment thus provided. It was a merciful provision for man.

Love In the Stock Market

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

About the close of the last century, when shares on the stock market were rising and falling like the waves of the sea under a storm, James Rigdon was for a time a power in Wall Street. When it was reported that Rigdon was selling a stock everybody rushed to sell. When he bought the price would rise like the thermometer on a July morning.

Rigdon was a bachelor, and as soon as it became known among his women friends that he knew what stocks were going up and what were going down he received more attention than the handsomest man in New York. One of these ladies, Miss Martindale, who wished to claim as his own, but despite all he could do he couldn't find out whether she had any use for him other than to learn how to make money in stocks.

One evening while with her she importuned him to give her a tip on some stock that was about to be "put-up." He explained to her that when he boomed a stock, if it were to rise, he was booming it, it would rise in value but the reverse was that, when he wished to unload, the moment it was known that he had begun to sell, down would go the market and he would be left with a lot of "undigested securities" on his hands. He was about to put up the market price on a certain stock, but he could not take her into his scheme for it was known that she was buying and selling by his advice it would result disastrously for him.

"But I won't sell," she said.
"Can I rely on you?"
"Certainly."
"Very well. Buy Onatara Copper. It is selling at 7 cents a share."
"How awfully kind of you!"
"I can rely on you?"
"Surely."

She gave him a special pleasure when he left her and, running to the telephone, she called her broker, Mr. 1000 shares of Onatara Copper. He did so without disturbing the market price of the stock half a point. Then she fell to thinking that her father and her brother and her sister would be delighted to participate in her good fortune. She told them she had bought Onatara Copper. There was no need for them to ask her why, because they knew she had for a long while been endeavoring to get a tip out of Mr. Rigdon. Surely there was no branch of confidence in this.

So the Martindale family put what state money they had in Onatara Copper, and each told his broker his reasons for doing so. Each broker had a number of speculators hanging about his office who were given the tip. The stock rose slowly and beautifully like a balloon sailing up toward the sky. Now and again it would fall a few thousand shares being thrown upon the market.

"Manipulation," said those in the secret. "The price is rising too rapidly for him. He hasn't got all he wants. Wait a bit!"

By and by these sales grew smaller, and for some time the stock continued to be offered. Miss Martindale asked Mr. Rigdon if it were not time to sell. He replied, "Not yet." And the stock went higher. Then suddenly it began to tumble. Every one who had been speculating on the Rigdon tip began to get "wound up" except the Martindale family. When Onatara had sunk to the price they paid for it Miss Martindale sent for Mr. Rigdon and asked him if the boom was over.

"Yes, it is," he replied, "and I have unloaded all I had, some 40,000 shares at a fair price."

"I supposed," she said coldly, "that you were to let me know when to sell as well as to buy."

"That would not have accorded with my plans. I told you when to buy, and you told others. I knew you would put up the stock if I had told you when to sell it would have spoiled my scheme."

"In other words, you have used me to your own advantage. You have not only disappointed me, but you have induced me to disappoint others."

"Why, they knew I bought the stock and surmised that I did so by your advice."

"And you did not tell them the secret. Well, you had no occasion to tell them. I believe that, in all, you and your family hold 3,000 shares. Am I right?"

"You are."

"Well, when the stock reached its highest stage I sold 3,000 shares for your account and also sold 3,000 shares more for you to be delivered within thirty days after the sale. You and your family have made on the rise of the stock $12,000 and as much more on the fall."

Miss Martindale sto. a looking at Mr. Rigdon with astonishment, the cold look on her face breaking into a smile. Then she put out her hand. Mr. Rigdon improved the opportunity by putting the other hand around her waist and, drawing her to him, kissed her at the same time proposing a new deal by which she should always profit by his operations.

Illustrations of gold on one side of a scale and love on the other, gold outweighing love, are very popular. The above is an instance where gold was used to untie love.

Point of View.
"Why, yes, what is the difference between a visit and a visitation?" Found Father—A visit, my boy, is when you go to see your Grandmother Jones, and a visitation is when your Grandmother Jones comes to see us.
